

TERRACED HOUSES IN LIA

PROJECT: TERRACED HOUSES IN LIA

LOCATION: MIKONOS . GREECE

YEAR: 2008

This complex of six small houses is developed on a large lot, with a steep topography and excellent views over the Aegean Sea. From a back road, is accessed to the houses. At the end of this road, the parking area is located under a pergola, with spaces for all properties.

The complex forms a row of houses arranged on three different levels that follows the topography. The volume of the complex stands out with its recesses and projections alternated with white stucco and stone walls in a harmonious contrast of tones and textures. Wood is also used in the carpentry, pergolas and porches. This careful selection allows the whole project to be seen as a heterogeneous unit, volumetrically inspired by vernacular architecture. Chimney sculptures that crown the roofs are also used. Each of the homes also boasts terraces and pergolas.

The floor plan where the entrance is located, houses the kitchen, a bathroom and the living room with a fireplace. On the lower floor, which is the natural ground level, there are three bedrooms and two bathrooms. The two houses at the ends of the row have more outdoors space, including, a living-dining area under a pergola and a small pool.
